History of the Kyrgyz National University named after J. Balasagyn

The Kirghiz State Pedagogical Institute named after M.V. Frunze was founded in 1932 and this date can be considered as the foundation date of the present KNU named after J. Balasagyn, whose origin starts from specialized educational institutions that were established in 1925, the 20th century, with the purpose of solving the issues of university teachers for the Kyrgyz Republic.

On May 24, 1951 the Council of Ministers of the USSR adopted a resolution on founding the Kyrgyz State University in Frunze on the basis of the Kirghiz Pedagogical Institute named after M.V. Frunze.

On December 11, 1972 the title “Kirghiz State University named after the 50th anniversary of the USSR” was awarded by the Resolution of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Kirghizia and the Council of Ministers of the Kirghiz SSR.

Taking into account the successful work of the university in a rapidly changing world, as a well as its positive role in democratic reforms in the socio-political life of the country, on August 11, 1993 the Kyrgyz State National University named after the 50th anniversary of the USSR was transformed into the Kyrgyz State National University by a special decree of the President of the Kyrgyz Republic.

On May 11, 2002 the Kyrgyz State National University was given a status of "National" and renamed as the Kyrgyz National University named after J. Balasagyn by the Decree of the President of the Kyrgyz Republic.
